

Best friends wedding

Contributed by MyPetFriends
Sunday, 12 August 2007

Even though it's wedding season, we haven't been invited to any weddings this year – in fact, us poor pets never get invited (although seeing as we're virtual pets, we kinda wouldn't have been invited anyway). However our owners were lucky enough to be invited to a few this year and have returned from the latest - their best friends wedding – clutching table decorations, stumbling over the collection of items taken as mementos and shamelessly drunk (Teddy: nothing new there then).

-

After finally getting out of bed at midday, they have not stopped going on about how fantastic it was. The dress, the flowers, the reception and the couples surprise during the first dance in the evening – all wonderfully organized and a beautiful day that the guests will surely have many fond memories of – when they get past their hangovers that is.

-

This weeks blog is dedicated to the newly weds – Brian & Ailsa - we hope you have a wonderful honeymoon in Canada, and wish you all the best for your future together.

-

-

{moscomment}